

How To Talk to Men 6-Day

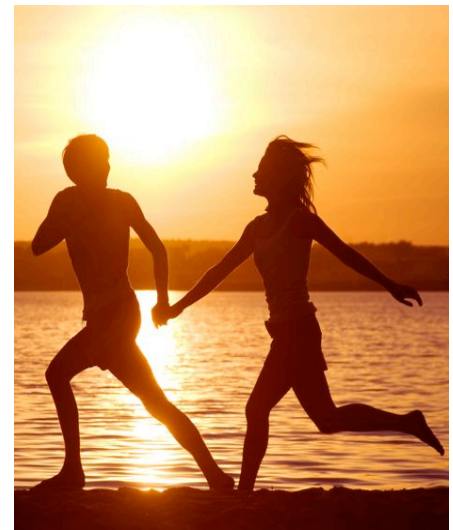

When women have the communication skills to create harmony with men, they can build great partnerships. Harmonious communication between men and women brings great fulfillment. When masculine and feminine forces align, they give birth to great accomplishments and good fortunes.

This 6-day intensive course provides women with the communication skills they need to create strong, healthy relationships with men. It also serves as an instructor course for women that want to train the How to Talk to Men weekend.

Too often men and women bog down in clashes of values. Or they flounder in petty misunderstandings. Only rarely do both sexes transcend differences and achieve profound cooperation.

The woman who discovers her innate wisdom can get everything she needs from men. She can create harmony with other women and harness the protective, productive masculine force in ways that delights men and women alike. It doesn't take a special talent. Every woman can master the patterns of communication that build strong, healthy families and businesses.

Wrestling with memories and past injuries is futile. The only direct route to aliveness is through restoring your feminine magnetism. You do that by bonding together with other loving women to share your wisdom and to learn the rules of engagement with men.

Getting Your Way

To create better connections with men you have to rehearse a new conversation. To converse means to make music together. The quality of your conversations with men will determine the quality of life for you and for the people you love.

Human civilization isn't always humane, and is seldom civil. We still lack basic balance and fairness between the sexes. To achieve true partnership with men you have to understand them. For women to find intimacy and to earn equally with men, they must accept the values shared by successful men.

Bringing Out the Best in Men

When we can embrace the nuances of the opposite gender, the differences create the excitement. We enjoy our collaboration. Man and woman become truly human.

By attending this seminar you will learn to shift from oppositional roles. As you master the skills of professional coaching you learn to inspire men to right action.

You can learn to build character in men. You see how to move them to great achievements. And by teaching other women how to make men curious instead of furious, you will give them a passport to a wonderful life.

Have you ever watched the love grow dimmer in a relationship? Have you ever been close to completing a business transaction with a man, only to have him shift the conversation to a personal level? Have you ever felt at a loss when a male colleague with less experience and ability was offered higher pay than you?

When you know how to respond to those challenges, you can create favorable outcomes. You learn those “turnarounds” through role-play--by exploring alternative responses and creating business scripts that transform men into respectful, cooperative partners.

Students don't learn nearly as much as teachers. That is why we present the HTTTM 6-day as an instructor course. You learn the skills more deeply by training and being trained by your classmates. When the course ends you are prepared to train relationship courses for fun and profit, or just transform the quality of your own partnership.

We invite you to spend a few days in heightened awareness, discovering the pleasure of leading other women in the process of role-play, psychodrama, and inner and outer theater. Learn to use the communication transformers that will open you up to a new dimension of cooperation.

Sage University teaches the skills that everyone needs to enjoy a more fulfilling life. If you are curious, call or e-mail today to learn more.

